PITTMAN SELLS PENCILS.
Crippled Wayfarer Relates a Brief Story of His Privations.
James Pittman who has friends in Binghamton, N. Y., told a pitiful story yesterday. He has no money and no resources except a small stock of lead pencils, which he sells with the hope of getting enough money to pay car fare to Binghamton.
James is a cripple, and has been for several days dependent upon the generosity of police officials. He tried in various ways to secure assistance, but can do no work, is unable to endure the cold and an exposed ride on freight cars and depends wholly on the sale of his few pencils for means of subsistence.

THROWN FROM THE CAR

A New York Drummer Meets Death on the Jersey Central.

HAD BEEN ANNOYING MISS ARCHER

The Commercial Traveler After Boasting the Well Known Actress Attempts to Pass from the Smoker to the Passenger Coach, Hurling from the Train—His Head Crushed in a Horrible Manner.

"In the midst of life we are in death."
This statement was never better illustrated than in the case of an unknown commercial traveler who was killed at Lower Catusque about 7 o'clock last night.

The Lehigh Valley train from New York to Wilkes-Barre arrived in Allentown on time. Among its passengers were the well known actress Miss Belle Archer and her company, who are to render the new comedy, "An Arabian Night," at the Academy of Music this evening.

Just before reaching Allentown, Miss Archer had left the seat occupied by herself and Miss Louise Galloway, and when the young man entered, was sitting in the seat directly in front of Mrs. Fannie Denham Rouse, a member of her troupe, and was engaged in conversation with that lady. The young drummer, with his sample case in one hand and his overcoat in the other, stopped at Miss Archer's seat, although there were several vacant ones about him, and said, "Is that your coat?"

Miss Archer looked at the garment alluded to, which was lying on the seat beside her, and then in surprise at her questioner, said:

"Will you take it away and let me sit beside you?"

"There are other seats about here with only one gentleman in, and some entirely vacant. Why don't you take one of these?"

"Oh, I'd rather sit beside you."

By this time Evelyn Vernon of Miss Archer's company was on the scene and with less ceremony than he usually exhibits shoved the drummer aside, returned his overcoat and baggage to another seat than the one he had occupied and sat beside Miss Archer.

DETAINMENT RESULTS IN DEATH.
Mr. Hickman, also a member of the company, called the young man's attention to several vacant seats in the forward part of the car.

"I'll sit where I please and won't do it to accommodate you either," was the retort.

"Sit where you please," said Mr. Hickman, "but have the goodness not to annoy those who are not troubling you in the least."

An inarticulate reply was given.

The commercial traveler's overcoat was hung up, his grip placed on a seat directly in front of Miss Archer and a cigar was produced from an inner pocket. Wheeling half around in his seat, the young fellow looked about him as though he would give a fair sized sum of money to be allowed the privilege of punching the heads of every individual within range of his violin.

This contemplation was followed by a brief trip to the smoking car. His return was signaled by another malignant and comprehensive stare. Again he arose and went into the smoking car. He was in there scarcely a minute when he was seen on the platform with the evident intention of entering the coach.

HIS SKULL CRUSHED.
The train was approaching Lower Catusque, and at this point a sharp curve and a steep bluff coincide. Suddenly an old gentleman who was sitting in the front seat of the coach yelled:

"My God! Stop the train!"

A momentary panic resulted. A dozen hands clutched the rail rope. Men grew pale and women showed signs of approaching hysteria. A hurried explanation from the man who yelled out evidenced that the stranger had attempted to steady himself at the curve and, falling, had been hurled sideways down the embankment. The train was stopped and the conductor and several passengers went back in search of the body. It was found lying near a heap of stones with the skull crushed as though it had been an eggshell.

Nothing was found upon the body to identify the unfortunate man, but from the markings on the sample case, it was ascertained that he was William L. Carson, a drummer for Fox, Falz & Webster, of New York.

VERY ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING

The Bridge Campaign Committee Discusses the Proposed Improvements—T. V. Powderly Working in the Cause—Statement by John E. Roche That Are Very Reliable and Most Interesting.

Captain May presided at the meeting of the bridge committee last evening. The attendance was larger and more enthusiastic than any held previously. Among the latter acquisitions being T. V. Powderly, C. C. Donovan and Mr. McAndrew from the First ward.

The committee on literature reported that the order for circulars was divided equally between the four daily papers and would be placed in the morning.

The finance committee made a favorable report. The executive committee recommended the following: That the representatives of the several wards where public meetings are desired, arrange to hold them on the Saturday previous to the election and the general committee will render all the assistance in their power. That while this committee was organized for the purpose of forwarding the campaign for the bridges, and not for the consideration of the viaduct question, nevertheless we are in favor of abolishing grade crossings wherever practicable.

We recommend that the ward committees procure the services of one man in each block who will see that every vote favorable to the bridges is cast. The report was adopted.

T. V. POWDERLY'S POSITION.
T. V. Powderly read a clipping from a Massachusetts newspaper, showing that the city of Lowell borrowed $100,000 for the purpose of giving employment to unemployed labor, and said that the city of Scranton should do this time will be of great benefit to those that need it most, and he hoped that all good citizens would interest themselves in securing votes for the bridges for this reason if for no other.

Mr. Roche showed that the interest charges paid by the city for the bridges in 1893 was $10,000, less in 1894 than in 1893. That the city will have a surplus over all expenditures this year of $12,000; that these two sums will be more than sufficient to meet the requirements of the act of the legislature which provides that 8 per cent of the city's income be set aside for the purpose of paying the interest on the bonds for the bridges without increasing the rate of taxation.

He also called attention to the fact that the bonded debt of the city was reduced more than $70,000 during 1893, and that although the city erected the Municipal building at a cost of $300,000, it is now a debt of $30,000, bought two acres for an engine house at a cost of $30,000, the city debt is less today than when the Municipal building was begun, and he drew the conclusion that if the city could afford to do all this and still reduce the debt, there was no doubt but it could pay for the bridges without increasing taxation.

DR. WILLIAMS' REMARKS.
Dr. Williams spoke warmly in favor of the bridges and assured the meeting that notwithstanding reports to the contrary Hyde Park would show by her generous vote for the bridges that she was not only entitled but deserving of the viaduct. He combated an assertion that the Fifteenth ward was opposed to the question to the extent reported. Mr. Pond, of the Thirteenth ward, Mr. Anderson, of the North End, Mr. Moore and others made very encouraging reports of the public minds as the question at issue. Mr. Powderly and Mr. Hume were authorized to act with Mr. Griener, of the Third ward, in the effort to arrange a meeting there.

ALMOST TWO DOLLARS FOR ONE.
Remarkable Reduction in Shoes Now Offered by Schank.

The remarkable reduction in the price of boots and shoes of a first class grade now being offered by Schank, the well known shoe dealer, is unprecedented in the history of the legitimate boot and shoe trade in Scranton. Fake fire and water sales have repeatedly advertised to sell goods at cost, but they have not done so.

As a matter of fact, there are but few firms in the country that ever do sell goods at exactly cost prices. Schank, the popular Arcade shoe dealer, is one of these few. He is only disposing of his present stock at just what it cost because he must have room for his spring goods. Roomy room—more room—this is the cry at Schank's, and the only way to get more room is by getting rid of present stock at just what it cost—no more or no less.

HAVE SECURED STATE LICENSE.
Mishler & Burgunder Managers of All Companies That Appar.

Mishler & Burgunder, the managers of the Academy of Music, have paid the $50 state license fee to County Treasurer Powell and taken out all companies. They say that they are the managers of every theatrical company that appears at the Academy and not simply lessees of the house. This position Mr. Powell does not challenge. It may or may not be correct, but it would require an opinion of the court to determine the matter.

Manager Davis, of Wonderland, has informed the county treasurer through his attorney, that he will take out a state license for his house.

TRUST AND SAFE DEPOSIT COMPANY.
Officers and Board of Directors That Have Been Elected.

The Lackawanna Trust and Safe Deposit company at its annual meeting elected a board of directors as follows: Henry J. Anderson, Henry Babin, Jr., R. T. Black, William Connell, J. Benjamin Dimmick, P. J. Horan, T. C. Soover, George Sanderson, Conrad Schroeder, William T. Smith, Edward B. Sturges and Charles H. Welles.

The officers elected were: William T. Smith, president; Henry Babin, Jr., vice president; Henry Babin, Jr., secretary; John W. Fowler, treasurer. The directors also declared the regular semi-annual dividend of 8 per cent.

The Republic Savings and Loan Association, of New York, having sold over $200 shares of its stock in Scranton, has called a meeting for Friday, Feb. 9 at 4 p. m., at its office, Dime Bank building, for the purpose of electing officers and directors. The meeting will also be offered for sale. F. B. Case, manager agency department, and L. G. Gadd, general manager, will be present and explain the nature and purpose of the association. Come and bring some one with you.

NEW WORLD'S FAIR OFFER.

It Is Simply Added to the Other Two, Which Yet Stand.

Many persons misconstrued the announcement in yesterday's TRIBUNE relative to the new Wanamaker series of World's fair portfolios. They took it to mean that we had abandoned the World's Fair Portfolio in four parts, as heretofore announced. We did not desire to convey this impression. On the contrary, all orders for this excellent work will be filled as before, but there may be some delay, in view of the extraordinary demand. The publishers are working night and day but their presses scarcely keep pace with the orders that come in.

The Wanamaker portfolio, in weekly parts, is simply added to the other two art offers, in obedience to the intense popular interest in these valuable illustrated publications. It is the best portfolio yet devised, take it all in all, but the others are both excellent; none better except our best. Additional particulars on page 7.

County Commissioners Had to Throw Out Less Than Half a Dozen from the Entire County.

County Commissioners Giles Roberts, John Demuth and S. W. Roberts, with the assistance of County Solicitor Kapp, yesterday completed the work of examining the certificates of nomination and the nomination papers sent in from the various election districts of the county. Less than half a dozen were found fatally defective. The principal defects in the papers were the nomination of too many candidates for inspectors of elections. In consequence several ambitious gentlemen who aspire to the office of inspector will not find their names on the official ballots.

In Lackawanna township two candidates for tax collector were named by Republicans. They are Frank Tool and W. R. Jones. Mr. Tool also filed nomination papers and although the certificate issued by the Republican caucus was thrown out, he will get on the official ballots on his nomination papers. Mr. Jones, who resides in the northern part of the township, did not file his nomination papers and his name will not appear on the official ballots, it having been decided that when a party nominates two candidates for one office the certificate of nomination is void.

The official ballots will be of about the same size as those used at the election last spring.

A MERCENARY FATHER.
He Compels His Intended Son-in-Law to Pay Cash for the Privilege.

Among the marriage licenses granted by Clerk of the Courts J. H. Thomas yesterday was one to Frank Nasta, of Yatesville, and Miss Annie Super, of this city, and back of that is one of the most romantic episodes ever narrated in the court house. It has its mercenary side as well for while the affection of the prospective groom and bride is sincere and mutual, an obdurate parent compelled the lover to pay over $800 before he would consent to take him as a son-in-law.

Nasta has been four years in this country and has been employed in an mine. His bride has been here but a short time and one of the conditions made when the loving twin separated was that when Nasta had saved the requisite amount he should send for her. Three months ago Nasta saw his hopes realized and he had no time in sending the glad news across the water. The sequel came yesterday when Anna accepted Frank gladly and joyfully, after Frank had accepted the conditions that her mercenary parent had imposed.

The circulation is on a plan that cannot fail of good results to those concerned as well as the city at large. Representatives of THE TRIBUNE will call upon those whose names are listed in this edition and explain its nature and value.

Those desiring views of their residences in this edition will please leave notice at the office.

WANT THE LAW OBEYED

Brewers' Association Have Agents of Foreign Brewing Companies Arrested.

SAY THEY ARE VIOLATING LAW

Warrants Issued Yesterday at the Instance of Charles Robinson, President of the Association, for the Arrest of Five Local Agents. One of the Accused Enters Bail. Other Arrests Are Contemplated.

The Brewers' Protective association of Lackawanna county has begun war on the foreign brewing establishments now doing business in this city through agents. It was announced several weeks ago in THE TRIBUNE that such action was contemplated and yesterday Charles Robinson, president of the association, went before Alderman Wright and swore to information charging certain persons, now residing in this city, with violating the laws of the state by selling brewed liquors without a license.

The accused are Thomas O'Boyle, agent for the Hinchelliffe Brewing and Malt company, of Patterson, N. J.; John Ford, agent for H. Kneibler & Co., of New York; John P. Mahon, agent for Felgous & Co., of Newark, N. J.; Peter Congrove, agent for James Wallace & Son, New York; Michael Cusick, agent for Burton Brewing company, of Patterson, N. J. Cusick was the agent up to Jan. 1, but the company's business in this region is now in the hands of Mr. Kind, of New York.

The warrants for the arrest of these men were placed in the hands of Detective Anthony Scanlon, who served them on the accused.

FORD ENTERS BAIL.
John Ford at once went before Alderman Wright and entered bail in the sum of $500 for his appearance at court. Robert C. Willis became his bondsman.

The others will enter bail today.

The Brewers' association of this county is a branch of the State organization. It is composed of the following firms: E. Robinson's Sons, Casey & Kelly, Brewing company, Scranton; Brewster company, M. Robinson, Keystone Brewing company, of Danmore, and Peter Krantz, of Carbondale. The association is represented in the present cases by Willard, Warren & Knapp.

It is contended that the foreign breweries doing business in this county are clearly violating the law, as they store houses where they keep their beer, ale and porter until it can be disposed of. Some of the concerns do considerable business, yet not a cent of their money flows into the coffers of the country. This the local brewers say is a great injustice to them, as they are compelled to pay a heavy license and then compete with persons who pay no license of any kind in this county.

OTHER ARRESTS MAY BE MADE.
There are a number of other agents that the Brewers' association have on their list, and a number of additional arrests may be made within the next few days.

If those who have already been arrested continue to sell they will be again arrested.

Good Investment.
The six per cent bonds of the Scranton Axle works are a very desirable security. The works are being enlarged and additional machinery put in to enable them to keep up with their orders, which are now on the books sufficient for a great part of the year. Applications for these bonds should be made at once to Smith B. Mott, financial agent, whose office is in rooms 47 and 48, Commonwealth building.
